Dedication

LEO RICH LEWIS

This 1930 JUMBO BOOK is dedicated to a man whose association with the student body, lasting for the past forty-eight years, has been a strength and an inspiration. He has held high the standard of student activity, ever urging those with whom he dealt on to greater success.

Foreword

The editors of this 1930 JUMBO BOOK have endeavored not simply to portray those events in the natural trend of student activity but to express those pleasures and friendships which add so much to college life.

JOHN
COUSENS

A.B., LL.D.

John Albert Cousens became acting president of Tufts College in 1919 and was elected the eighth President of the College in 1920. Since that time the College has had a period of very marked improvement and development.

1930

The President's Message

When student activities,—so-called for lack or more precise words,—are discussed it may often be inferred that there is present the assumption that student activities are looked upon askance by the administration and the faculty who tolerate them only because there is no ready means for doing away with them. Such an assumption is, it seems to me, entirely false and has for its excuse for being only the rare occasion when it is necessary to lay a restraining hand upon some individual student whose extravagant interest in one or more of the student activities threatens to obscure his estimate of the value of the college curriculum, or when student activities threaten to multiply to such an extent as to put the activities themselves in jeopardy. The fact is that student activities are recognized by those who bear the chief responsibility for the educational program represented by the College as very important elements in the general situation. The truth of this is sufficiently manifest when, as is the case continually, members of the Faculty by their advice and by their direct effort give to student activities full measure of encouragement. It is a matter of rejoicing among all those interested in Tufts College that the student activities here are in such sound and healthy condition. If any criticism whatever could be offered, it would be on the ground that there are too many of them, but if such criticism were offered, it would be difficult to bring valid charges against any one considered separately. They are all good, on the whole well managed, on the whole in line with the fundamental purpose designed to be served. It is impossible, without exceeding appropriate limits of this paragraph, for me to give a list including all the student activities and to say a word in praise of each. But I can accomplish my purpose if I select a few, choosing those which engage the attention of the largest number of students, though by so doing I may perhaps neglect some deserving of the highest praise. Athletics at Tufts College deserve commendation, not because of the rather spectacular success which has attended our efforts in intercollegiate sport of late years, though this is, of course, a source of considerable satisfaction, but because of the fine spirit of sportsmanship present wherever athletic effort is made. This is as true among the women as it is among the men. In dramatics the College has established, through many years of successful effort, an enviable reputation. The better the work done in years gone by the more difficult to register progress as the years pass. On this account the last production by our Dramatic Club was remarkable because, in the judgment of one at least who witnessed it, something a little finer and a little more significant was accomplished than had ever been accomplished before. After a period of innocuous desuetude a revised Glee Club has taken its place among us. Revival of interest in this direction is merely indicative of the steady growth of interest in things musical. Throughout the institution to be sure, with respect to musical affairs, student activity does not depend entirely or even chiefly on the initiative of the students themselves; but Professor Lewis could not have his chapel choir, his men's glee club, his women's glee club, his string quartet, his band, or his orchestra unless the students were willing to follow his inspiring leadership. Professor Maynard sends out each year a debating team,—sometimes more than one,—which accounts for itself in a way compatible with the traditions of the College. I think the college paper was never better than this year, though sometimes more spectacular. In those student activities which may be termed clearly social, such as the Evening Party Association, there is much cause for satisfaction. I challenge any other college in New England to furnish so good a record of behaviour as our students can furnish who have gathered for social purposes. So I could go on, but remembering that the good lawyer is careful never to over-prove his case, I am content to believe that enough has been said to indicate that the President sets a high value upon the student activities at Tufts College, that he has little, if any criticism of them to offer, that he is always ready to do anything in his power to further their interest.

Very truly yours,

John A. Cousens

The History of the Class of 1930

Four years can bring many changes and improvements to any organization or institution. Tufts College, no exception to the rule, has developed along many lines material, social and political.

Four years ago this Fall, Fletcher Hall first opened its doors as the newest dormitory for men. Braker Hall, nothing but a large hole in the ground back in that Fall of 1926, has blossomed out into a piece of architectural beauty, a prizewinning structure. Visitors to the "Hill" now roll in through Gager Gate on a hard-surfaced road, and leave through the new Alumni Gate on Professors Row.

A large number of Jackson students are now suitably accommodated in the newest women's dormitory, Stratton Hall. The campus fence has now been extended completely around the front of the campus and a new gate, Hodgden, faces Curtis Hall and the new home of the Music Department.

One of the greatest additions to the campus is the new entrance to "The Hill"—the Memorial Gate and Stairway, with the new Theological School surmounting the brow of the hill. Here is a fitting and impressive entrance to "The College on the Hill".

The social developments of the college are wide and numerous. There was many a week during this last winter when every evening was filled with some extra-curricula activity—basketball, dramatics, debating, or a glee club concert. Debates, discussions, and editorials concerning fraternity and sorority policies show that the college is awake to the problems that confront these organizations. Then there is that other all-important side of social life which must not be overlooked—dances. During the past four years, four new formals have been added to the annual list of regular college dances.

During the four years that have just elapsed the sports have been continually raised to higher planes. Tufts has produced its greatest football team—the undefeated, untied eleven of 1927. The 1930 basketball quintet rivaled any that has represented Tufts in its history. Wrestling has brought four champions to Tufts, with teams which, on two successive years, won second place in the Intercollegiates. The baseball teams have all ranked in their usual high place, with several victories over leading college nines. Golf is now a recognized college sport. The latest and best-received development along the line of sport at Tufts is the actual start on the new million-dollar gymnasium.

Many other important developments have resulted in these last four years. The dramatic societies of the college have given their audiences splendid dramatic productions. The musical clubs, which once were seemingly dying of old age, suddenly came to life this last year with one of the best clubs ever to represent the college. The honorary Engineering society, Tau Beta Pi, has become established here at Tufts. The JUMBO BOOK has been established as a yearly publication. Class dues are now collected on the term bill. The honorary societies have partly returned to their former standard of self-perpetuation, nomination now being made by the retiring society.

But, without doubt, the greatest asset that Tufts College has had during the last four years is the Class of 1930. The very existence of a college depends upon its student body, and the Class of 1930 has more than done its share in maintaining the high standards of Tufts. Let us say a few words concerning this illustrious group of students.

In the Fall of 1926 there came to "The College on the Hill" the first "selected" group of Freshmen, nearly three hundred strong, inclusive of Jackson. Immediately, upon the two hundred and more unsuspecting new men there pounced bands of fraternity rushers, with big records, smooth tongues, and little round buttons. Quickly the class was combed of its best fraternity prospects.

After a short time came the class elections, "jamming," and the class banquet. Under the supervision of the Junior officers the following men were selected to lead the Class of 1930: President, Clarence O. Atkinson; Vice-President, Harold T. McCarthy; Secretary, Richard Dodge; Treasurer, Charles K. Owen; Marshal, Charles C. Hersey.

The three-day jamming season started on Tuesday, October 19, and before the day was five minutes old practically the entire Freshman Class sat down to its first class banquet in the Hotel Westminster. After the five courses had been eaten, "Dick" Dodge took charge of the gathering and, as the very efficient toastmaster, introduced "Tom" Wilson, the Junior President, Atkinson, our own Prexy; the other Frosh officers, and Professor George S. Miller. Then came the early-morning return to the Hill, a few short hours of sleep, and a day of tying up resisting Sophs.

The record of the Freshman football team was no glowing one that Fall, for 1930 won but one of its six contests, falling in the final game before the Sophomores, 19-6.

The Freshman Class was well represented in the tennis tournament, that Fall of 1926, and when the final round was played Dick Dodge defeated the captain of the tennis team for the championship.

Evidently the yearlings thought they were God's gift to the glee club, for we find the names of two dozen Freshmen among the candidates.

Many other lines of extra-curricula work find the presence of members of the Freshman Class. Ed Wright was a member of the debating team. The plea for Weekly "heelers" found a creditable response from among the yearlings. Three P's chose Freshmen to play in its dramatic performances.

The election of the permanent Freshman officers found no change in the leaders of 1930. The officers of the class were completed by the selection of Edward W. Wright as Undergraduate Historian.

The basketball season of the Freshman team that winter was fairly successful. In the game with the second-year men the Frosh lost, 33-38, after leading at the half, 20-10. Mark Seaver, leader of the first-year grapplers, was a consistent winner during the Freshman wrestling season. The best showing that the team made that Winter, however, was a tie with M. I. T. The Sophomore meet was a bitter defeat, 26-5.

The Freshman-Sophomore debate was a little more encouraging to the Class of 1930. "Chuck" Owen, "Ed" Wright, and "Irv" Stultz successfully upheld the affirmative of the question: "Resolved, that Tufts College should introduce elective courses in military training."

Then came Junior Day with its various activities. At the ceremony of extra-curricula awards twelve Freshmen were honored by election to the Sophomore honorary society, Sword and Shield.

The Freshmen had a good baseball team that Spring, with Melly, Lauppe, and Ingalls outstanding. The Frosh track team won a majority of its meets. The outstanding winner was "Dick" Harpin, who, in the meet with M. I. T., established a new Tufts pole-vault record at 10 feet, 3 inches. It was during this Spring of 1927 that the first Tufts golf tournament was played, and from the ranks of the Freshman Class arose the first Tufts golf champion, "Dick" Warren.

Thus the first year of the Class of 1930 passed, and a new year was ushered in. Tufts final "jamming" season took place that Fall. Frosh and Sophs shared equally in their tying-up activities, but neither class prevented the other from having a successful banquet.

The Sophomore feast was held in the Copley Plaza the evening of October 19. "Chan" Wright and Professor Frank E. Seavey were the guests of the evening. The new class officers, as announced that evening, show nearly a complete change in the leaders of 1930. The new president was Harold T. McCarthy, who, it later appeared, was therewith starting a three-year term as head of the Class of 1930. The other officers were: Vice-President, Charles C. Hersey; Secretary, Ernest G. Wiles; Treasurer, Charles K. Owen; and Marshal, P. Joseph LeMaistre.

It will be remembered that this was the season that the Tufts football team was the only undefeated, untied team in the East. The Class of 1930 numbered two "regulars" on that famous eleven—"Fran" Melly and "Gene" Tobey.

But two players do not make a whole football team, and when the class team met that of the Freshmen upon the gridiron the first-year men were victorious, 19-0. Cross Country was added as a class contest this Fall and this also was won by the Frosh. The contests in the Winter sports, however, proved to be a different story. 1930 won its first Freshman-Sophomore contest when the basketball quintet won from the yearlings, 28-20. The Sophomore grapplers made the count even on class contests with a 16-13 victory.

The varsity basketball team, that winter, was led in points scored by "Dick" Warren, a Sophomore. The baseball nine, when spring came around, had Melly for regular catcher.

In a seventh-inning rally the Freshmen won the baseball game from 1930 by the score of 7 to 4. 1930 won the track meet with the yearlings by a good margin, 79 1-6 to 55 5-6.

"Dick" Warren was again the college golf champion, he also served as the captain of the newly-organized golf team, and was the prime factor, a year later, in securing recognition of golf as a regular college sport.

Then came the third chapter in this story of the Class of 1930. Ivy Society this year consisted of Harold T. McCarthy, President; E. Davis Woodbury, Secretary; Charles E. Boardman, Treasurer; George E. Bowles, William H. Curtis, Howard A. Lincoln, P. Joseph LeMaistre, Herman R. Rachdorf, Richard C. Warren, and Ernest G. Wiles.

The officers of the class, as determined by an early election, were President, Harold T. McCarthy; Vice-President, George E. Bowles; Secretary, E. Davis Woodbury; Treasurer, Charles E. Boardman; and Marshal, P. Joseph LeMaistre. A new historian had to be selected and George H. Wood was chosen to fill this office.

In the sport world the Junior Class produced twenty-two lettermen, with "Gene" Tobey, "Dick" Warren, and "Ernie" Wiles winning their letters in two sports. "Ernie" was captain of the cross country team and "Dick" was leader of the golfers. This year, 1930 won the championship of interclass basketball, winning a long-sought victory over 1929 on the final night, 30-24. A new golf king was crowned that spring when "Joe" LeMaistre won the third Tufts golf tournament.

May was Junior Day, our Junior Day. The Prom, on the eve of the memorable day, was "one smart time." "Music of excellence was furnished by the Crimsonians." The festivities of the day started with the announcements of extra-curricula awards. The more important of the announcements included the selection of Robert E. Polk as editor-in-chief of The Tufts Weekly and Duane E. Kimball as editor-in-chief of the 1930 JUMBO BOOK; the election to membership in Pen, Paint, and Pretzels of Carroll L. Coburn, Norman E. Eyster, Robert W. Nicholson, and Warren B. Walsh. The event of the ceremony holding the most interest was the announcement of those elected to Tower Cross. Charles E. Boardman, Wendell W. Horton, Duane E. Kimball, P. Joseph LeMaistre, Howard A. Lincoln, Harold T. McCarthy, Everett T. McKinney, John A. Thompson, Richard C. Warren, and Ernest G. Wiles were so honored.

Following this was Boardman's Ivy Oration, the planting of the ivy, and the Horribles Parade, won by Zeta Psi with their burlesque of the Volga Boatmen.

The afternoon was made enjoyable by a baseball victory over Bowdoin. Then came the Luncheon and Dansant, the Junior Day Play, and, as the final feature of a most enjoyable day, the Junior Day dance in the Gym.

Another September approached and 1930 became the "High and Mighty" Senior Class. It would be folly to recount here the innumerable activities of the Senior year. This JUMBO BOOK is full, practically from cover to cover, of the doings of 1930. Only the briefest account of these doings will be mentioned here.

The officers of the Senior Class are: President, Harold T. McCarthy; Vice-President, Howard A. Lincoln; Secretary, Leroy E. Mayo; Treasurer, William H. Curtis; and Marshal, P. Joseph LeMaistre.

Along scholastic lines we find that five Seniors were elected to Phi Beta Kappa and ten to Tau Beta Pi.

Captains of successful Tufts sports include the following Seniors: Football, Herman R. Rachdorf; Cross Country, Carl A. Seaward; Basketball, Wendell W. Horton; Track, Leroy E. Mayo; Tennis, Chester H. Young; and Golf, Richard C. Warren.

The Commencement Season will soon be here. Soon the Class of 1930 will be an Alumni organization. First comes Class Day. In the morning are the Seniors' Last Chapel and the Chapel Exercises, with Warren B. Walsh delivering the oration for Tufts. In the afternoon are the Tree Exercises, with the Tree Oration delivered by "Chic" Boardman and the Class History by "Splint" Wood. In the evening dancing on the tennis courts and in the gym conclude the day's festivities.

On Alumni Day, the grads, old and young, return to renew old acquaintances and to see "The Hill" again. Sunday we hear our Baccalaureate Sermon and attend the President's Reception.

In his speech of welcome four years ago President Cousens said: "The sands of your hour glass are golden sands, and I beseech you not to waste a single grain." Those who heard and heeded will receive their certificates of graduation on Commencement Day. Speakers for this occasion will include Richard A. Winslow, representing the School of Liberal Arts; Ruth Lowe, representing Jackson; Robert E. Polk, the Engineering School; and Lawrence W. Abbott, the Theological School.

Then, as the final farewell to undergraduate days, is the Senior Promenade. The Class of 1930 will depart from the age-old tradition of using Goddard Gymnasium for this dance and will utilize the Louis XIV Ball Room in the Hotel Somerset.

Thus concludes the story of the Class of Nineteen Thirty.

March 25, 1930.

The Student Council

The Student Council of Tufts College, formed in nineteen twenty-four, controls and regulates all matters concerning student life and activities. The membership of the Council includes undergraduate representatives from the various societies, publications, and sports of the College, and one faculty member. The Council is subject to a final check by the Faculty when the latter deems it necessary to so act. The present Council adopted several important innovations. It was decided that the class dues be included on the term bill. Also, the members of the honorary societies will be elected by the class from a list compiled by members of the societies whom they succeed.

The Interfraternity Council

The Interfraternity Council of Tufts College is composed of one Senior and one Junior delegate from each Fraternity. Its purpose is to promote good fellowship among the fraternal organizations of the College and to regulate matters of interfraternity concern. During the past year the Council has adopted a new plan whereby the group gathers at a fraternity house dinner previous to the meeting. At their meetings the Council has drawn up new rushing rules which will be enforced next year. The Council displayed itself socially by running a formal dance in Goddard Gymnasium.

The Debating Council

The Debating Council is chosen from the three upper classes at tryouts early in the year. From its membership the varsity debating teams are chosen. The varsity teams engaged in a very intensive schedule of debates, participating in five debates within a period of ten days. Debates were held with Bowdoin, Bates men, Colby, Middlebury, Dartmouth, and Bates women. The trend of intercollegiate debating toward no-decision debates seems to have found favor at Tufts as a result of the no-decision debate with the Bates women. The latter was highly entertaining and lacked the tension so deplorable in decision debates. In the last few years Prof. Maynard has developed debating from a relatively unimportant extra-curricula activity to one of the most prominent of our intercollegiate activities.

The Tufts Weekly

The Tufts Weekly is the undergraduate paper of the college. It has shown marked improvement in recent years. Among its editorial policies this year have been support of the plan for the collection of class dues by the college and a plea for a change in the method of election to the class honorary societies. Many interesting communications have been published in its columns.

Dramatics

Dramatics

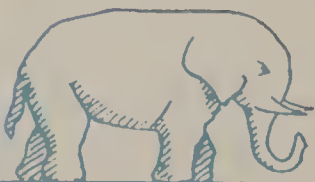

Students interested in dramatics returned in the fall to find several innovations in Jackson Gymnasium. During the summer an ample and convenient make-up room, new footlights, and a new curtain had been provided, and the realization of these long-felt wants increased the enthusiasm for dramatics. Over sixty appeared at the dramatics rally, and immediately preparations of "Arms and the Man" began. This popular play by George Bernard Shaw was given by Pen, Paint and Pretzels on November 14th and 15th to capacity houses.

The designs of Bulgarian scenes and costumes were taken from authentic sources and will long be remembered for their striking beauty.

Miss MacKinnon as ambitious Louka, Mr. Lothrop as the bold and dashing Bluntschli, and Mr. Potter as Nicola did outstandingly good work.

"IF"

"If", by Lord Dunsany, a play representing a curious blending of realism and romance, of the richness of the East and the drabness of a smoky London suburb, was produced by The Masque, December 12th and 13th. It is a long play, with a large cast, elaborate and difficult of production. An entirely new set of flats was built and first used for "If". Long hours of painstaking labor went into the manufacture of scenes and costumes for this play and from the point of view of production it was the most noteworthy work of the year. The play itself, however, found less favor with the college audience than the other plays of the season, perhaps because of its unusual length.

Mr. Carney's interpretation of Archie Beal deserves high commendation. Several of the minor actors, namely, Miss Sweeney, Miss Currie, Mr. Butters, Mr. Larsson, and Mr. McCarthy, performed so notably that their small parts stood out vividly in the production.

Miss MacKinnon, Messrs. Potter and McCarthy in "Anna Christie"

"ANNA CHRISTIE"

Eugene O'Neill's "Anna Christie", produced February 26th and 27th by Pen, Paint, and Pretzels, was undoubtedly the most successful production of the year. Superb acting of this highly emotional play held two packed houses spell-bound. Kaye MacKinnon lost us in the beaten, yet fiercely proud, Anna. Her quick changes of mood, her groping for a better mode of life, her final compromise,—Miss MacKinnon mastered all these difficult dramatic situations so well that the Anna of our own stage was all that O'Neill could have wished her to be, vivid, strong, appealing. Gilbert Potter, already well known to Tufts audiences, brought his dramatic career at Tufts to a fitting close with his excellent interpretation of Chris Christopherson. He became the old seaman, who could easily shift all his burdens by blaming "dat ole davil sea!" for his troubles. Edward McCarthy played Mat Burke splendidly. He fairly towered on the stage: bronzed, pugnacious, and Irish. There was no doubt of the confidence and blind faith of his Mat Burke. Mildred Robinson acted the part of Marthy Owen notably, also.

To quote the Boston Transcript: "One has found 'Anna Christie' burnished again in these hands. That there are flaws it would be silly to deny . . . that technical difficulties are not always surmountable we can understand, while yet we marvel that the illusion is so nearly complete. Zealous hands have fashioned the settings, long hours of hard work have been spent to excellent purpose."

"HOLIDAY"

The Masque produced Philip Barry's sophisticated comedy, "Holiday", on March 26th and 27th. Differing entirely from the preceding plays of the season it ended the dramatic year with a lighter, happier note. The college audience enjoyed thoroughly the wit sparkling throughout the play. Ruth Libbey, a newcomer to the Tufts stage, adapted herself admirably to her part of Linda, the feminine lead. Ned Carney, who needs no introduction, gave us further example of his ability and versatility as Johnny Case, the young man who forfeited riches for "Holiday". Edwin Whittaker as the pompous big business man and Roger Poole as the dissipated son of riches added much to the play.

The Glee Club

In spite of a two-year layoff and a complete absence of previous club members, Prof. Lewis was able to organize one of the best glee clubs in the history of the college. Edward McCarthy and Andrew Farquhar rank high among the soloists and leaders of Tufts glee clubs. The regular mid-year campus concerts and several concerts in neighboring cities were well received.

Captain-Elect Arlanson

Four years ago, in the autumn of 1926, Arthur Sampson returned to his alma mater to assume a position as head coach of Tufts College football teams. The rest is too well known to need repetition; suffice it to say that with his coming the Brown and Blue began to experience a new era of success on the gridiron. Three years of exceptional material combined with the most effective coaching to place Tufts definitely on the football map, but June, 1929, brought to a close the undergraduate days of most of the men who had carried the Brown and Blue to the pinnacle of small college football. September brought the Jumbo mentor abruptly face to face with a new and difficult problem. A completely new backfield had to be developed to replace that great 1928 quartet, and that too without even veteran substitutes for a nucleus. It was a dismal outlook, but work was started and results were secured. Tufts enjoyed its fourth successful season under Coach Sampson. New Hampshire State was the only team able to claim victory over the Brown and Blue in an eight-game schedule, while two others, Amherst and

M. A. C., played tie games. This 1929 eleven, lacking perhaps the sparkle and color of its immediate predecessors, was outstanding for its cooperative spirit and fighting qualities so often demonstrated, and so important in its ultimate success.

Much depended on the linemen in these campaigns of the 1929 season, and it may not be even remotely suggested that they were found wanting. With an abundance of veteran material supplemented by many promising new candidates Coach Manly developed a set of forwards second to none they opposed. Their outstanding achievement came in the second half of the Amherst contest when, with their backs almost continually to the wall, they doggedly cut short several desperate threats on the part of the Sabrinas to break the deadlock in which the game finally ended. Captain Rachdorf at guard proved an inspiration to his mates at every instant with his constant aggressiveness, and the end play of Harry Arlanson, captain-elect, constituted a source of continual worry and chagrin for the opposition, gaining him wide recognition as one of the best ends in this section. Tobey and Ruggiero, who with Captain Rachdorf have played their last game for Tufts, were bulwarks in the center of the line, and Coach Manly will be hard put to replace them next fall.

From the confused backfield situation present at the opening of practice the combination comprised of LeCain, LeMaistre, Ingalls, and Holland was evolved as the best balanced quartet, and performed the greater part of the ball carrying duties during the season. It was not a group made up of spectacular individuals, but one which gained its ends through steady, concerted action. George LeCain was the leading scorer of the four, and throughout the schedule played a game of even tenor and consistent excellence.

Tufts opened its 1929 season on October 5 when they journeyed to Waterville to oppose Colby. Four periods of typical early season play left the Brown and Blue in possession of its first victory by a 12-6 score. Ability to utilize the breaks accounted for the Jumbo success as George LeCain crossed the Colby goal for two touchdowns.

On the following Saturday the Tufts eleven made its first home appearance when they took the field against Bates, their second Maine opponent of the year. George LeCain proved equally as disastrous for Bates as he had for Colby the previous week with the result that the chapel tower pealed forth our second victory to the tune of 19-0. The large score afforded Coach Sampson the opportunity to experiment some with his substitute material.

Connecticut Agricultural College provided the Tufts team with its first real opposition a week later. It was a desperate battle and one whose outcome was always in doubt, but George LeCain scored early in the first half and this proved to be enough. Tufts retained the lead in the face of determined Aggie intentions to the contrary, and was victorious, 7-0.

October 26 came, and with it disaster. Tufts met its solitary reverse of the year at Durham when a powerful New Hampshire eleven secured a long-sought victory, 18-2. The bright spot of the contest for the Brown and Blue was a march down the field in the closing minutes of play which fell just short of a score.

A week later Tufts renewed its rivalry with Boston University. After a scoreless first half the Brown and Blue offense gathered momentum enough to secure two touchdowns in the last two periods with a 14-0 decision. LeMaistre and Ingalls featured in the Tufts attack.

The next game was with Amherst and it resulted in the first tie of the season. In the most thrilling contest of the year Tufts battled a fast Amherst eleven to a 13-13 deadlock. Both teams missed victory by the narrowest of margins.

Ingalls Goes for Five Yards against Amherst

On November 16 Bowdoin came to the Oval to oppose Tufts in our first objective game. It was a narrow squeeze but the Brown and Blue eleven had the best of it by a one point margin, 7-6. In all fairness it must be admitted that the victory was hardly decisive.

Tired by the Amherst and Bowdoin struggles, and handicapped by poor weather conditions Tufts in its final game of the year was held to a scoreless tie by a scrappy M. A. C. eleven. The bitter cold rendered good football well nigh impossible.

The prospects for 1930 seem very favorable. Of this 1929 eleven only five men will be lost, Rachdorf, Tobey, and Ruggiero from the line, and LeMaistre and Holland from the backfield. Thus an excellent nucleus will remain for next September.

Baseball at Tufts under Coach Kenneth L. Nash has been consistently on a very high plane, and 1929 did not constitute the exception to the rule. In an eighteen-game schedule including the most formidable nines in the east the Brown and Blue team set up a final standing of ten victories and eight losses. It must also be noted that of these eight reverses three were received by a one-run margin, two of them being the colorful commencement season clashes with Boston College and Harvard.

The major problem confronting Coach Nash during his spring training was that of his pitching staff. No veteran of any considerable experience was left to him; he had to rebuild from the ground up. However, as has so often happened in recent years, one man came definitely to the fore and carried the brunt of the twirling duties. This season it was Lou Adams, a junior without any previous varsity experience, who stepped out and won seven of the ten games in which Tufts was the victor. Stanley and Parkhurst accounted for the other three victories and relieved Adams in some games.

The three sophomore members of the nine, Captain-elect Arlanson at catch, Ingalls at shortstop, and Ockert in left field, were invaluable to the team, the entire trio being among the leading fielders and hitters on the club. Arlanson in particular excelled at bat. Leonardi and Fitzgerald were other men who caused the opposing pitchers considerable worry, while Ellis and Phillips did noteworthy work in the field.

The season opened with a trip during spring vacation on which the Brown and Blue defeated Temple, lost to Columbia and Penn, and had two games called on account of rain. The nine then entered on a home stay during which Northeastern, Bates, and Wesleyan were met and defeated in that order. A trip to Weston to play Boston University resulted in a fourth consecutive victory for Tufts, and the string reached five when Bowdoin came to the Oval on the following Saturday. Yale proved too powerful for the Jumbos, but the following victory over the undefeated Lafayette nine somewhat atoned for the New Haven failure. On May 18 M. A. C. also fell before the Brown and Blue. A trip out Worcester way resulted in a defeat at the hands of Holy Cross and a victory over Springfield. A Vermont trip also produced one defeat after another the former coming at the University of Vermont and the latter at Middlebury. New Hampshire was nosed out at the Oval and only B. C. and Harvard remained. With the least semblance of a break Tufts would have won at least one of the commencement season classics, but the breaks were in the wrong direction so Tufts wound up its season one run shy in each of its final contests.

1930 presents rather a novel situation as baseball prospects have gone in recent years. For once the pitching department should not be the greatest of Coach Nash's worries, as Adams and Parkhurst, premier twirlers of a year ago, are both available and reinforced by Lefty Hatch of last year's freshman nine. With Captain Arlanson ready to take his stand behind the plate the battery should cause Coach Nash little worry. The infield and outfield are the real problems. Ingalls at shortstop and

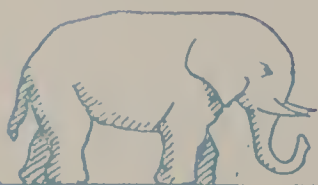

Coach Nash

Ockert and Tobey in the field are the only other lettermen left. From the yearling team of last season several prominent men have come up who promise to help out the situation. Foremost among these are Verge, Fine, Hastings, McCarthy, Hornig, and Kennedy.

Coach Manly

Only once before, in 1924, has a Tufts Basketball team achieved a record the equal of that of the 1930 quintet. In a difficult schedule of thirteen games with the foremost teams in this part of the country, the Brown and Blue was the victor on ten occasions, and maintained a undefeated standing in all its contests played in Goddard Gym. All of the three defeats sustained during the season were received on Connecticut floors. Two of them came in the two opening games of the season at the hands of Trinity and Conn. Aggies, and the third occurred at Wesleyan. The two latter games were settled by margins of two and four points respectively. The more notable of the Jumbo victories were those secured over Springfield, Brown, Stevens

Tech, M. A. C., and New Hampshire. Northeastern, Worcester Tech, Clark, Boston University, and M. I. T. were the other colleges which fell before the accurate Brown and Blue five.

The regular combination composed of Captain Horton and Haber at the forwards, Cochran at center, and Warren and Fine at the guards represented a nice balance of offensive and defensive strength. Captain-elect Cochran was the leading scorer of the team with a 127-point total, seconded by Haber with 109 and Horton with 89 points. Warren and Fine in the back-court spent the greatest part of their time in efficiently preventing scores by the opposition. The play of Butters and Robison made it possible for Coach Manly to substitute at any time with the utmost confidence.

Prospects for 1931 seem unusually promising. Despite the loss by graduation of Captain Horton, Warren, and Butters all of whom have been prominent on the court for three years, Coach Manly will have an excellent nucleus for next year. The four lettermen returning are members of the sophomore class, and all are men of proved ability and experience. Basketball should continue to prosper at Tufts.

After a rather poor start against Harvard and West Point in the opening meets of the year the varsity wrestling team proceeded to carry out the remainder of its schedule in that decisive fashion which has characterized the Brown and Blue matmen of recent years. When all was over four victories, one tie, and two defeats stood as the record of the season, and one which may justly be hung beside those of other Tufts teams turned out by Coach Ruggeri. Springfield, Williams, Norwich, and M. I. T. were the teams defeated, and Brown was tied. In addition the team secured second place with a total of twenty-three points in the New England Intercollegiate Wrestling Meet held at M. I. T. at the close of the season.

Coach Ruggeri

The work of Captain Stella throughout the season stamped him as one of the greatest wrestlers that has ever represented this institution. Until Klein of Harvard gained a referee's decision over him in the New England Intercollegiates the Jumbo leader had not known defeat in two years of varsity competition and one of freshman. Stella later redeemed himself by taking a referee's decision with nearly six minutes time advantage from Klein in the national intercollegiates. The work of Littleton in winning the deciding bout in each of the last four dual meets was commendable. Captain-elect Minasian, in his first year on the varsity, was also victorious in all the dual meets, but lost on a decision in the New England Intercollegiates after a bitter overtime struggle. Daniels, Govoni, Seaver, and Giles were other men who played an important part in the success of the team.

Stella and Minasian are the first wrestlers to represent Tufts in the national intercollegiates, the former beating Klein of Harvard in the preliminaries and losing to the champion by a close decision in the semi-finals.

There is every indication that 1931 will be a banner year for Tufts on the mat. The loss of Captain Stella who will enter the Medical School in the fall will be most severely felt by Coach Ruggeri. However with Captain-elect Minasian, Daniels, Giles, Littleton, Seaver, and Peck returning next year there will be a veteran available in nearly every class.

The baseball season last spring was very short and the number of games limited. However, after a year's absence from the field of varsity sports, baseball again came into the limelight and the interest in this sport was renewed. A game at Pembroke and a return game on the home diamond constituted the season because few women's colleges give a place to baseball among varsity athletics. With a fresh start and good material it is possible to look forward to a more successful season this year.
